Multiplayer Action

Multiplayer action in The Outfit includes 12 multiplayer-only maps.

Part of what makes The Outfit such a fantastic game are the many Multiplayer maps available. These maps offer users the chance to play head-to-head against multiple enemies in three classic gaming modes. The multiplayer experience doesn't end there, however, since a two-player cooperative mode is included for the single-player campaign as well. This chapter takes a look at multiplayer gaming, including detailing each of the multiplayer maps.

MULTIPLAYER MODES

Before getting into the nitty gritty of the multiplayer maps, let's examine the various multiplayer modes. Once you've selected Multiplayer from the Main Menu, you are given a list of four options before moving forward. These options are:

XBOX LIVE

Select this to join up with other gamers all over the world via Microsoft's Xbox Live service.

SPLIT SCREEN

This option allows you to play against a friend on the same Xbox unit. The screen is split vertically so that you can both play simultaneously on the same system/TV.

SYSTEM LINK

This option is for those folks that have two complete systems that can be linked together so that each player has a full screen to view.

INSIGNIA SELECTION

There are 13 Insignias to choose from, including War Pigs, Thunder, The Reaper, The Judge, The Chief, The Beast, Stars & Stripes, Relic, Fluffy Bunny, Disgruntled Bunny, Diamond Back, Death from Above, and Bomb Shell.

CO-OP (COOPERATIVE)

The Co-Op option (which is available under the Multiplayer Menu off of the Main Menu) allows you to play the single-player campaign (or any mission from it) with another player. This is a lot of fun and ultimately it makes the single-player game slightly easier since there are two players working together to achieve the same goal. In fact, playing cooperatively makes the single-player game fresh again, making it a blast to play through a second time.

Playing cooperatively is a blast.

VERSUS

The Versus multiplayer mode allows you to play against one or more enemies and/or teammates on one of 12 distinct multiplayer maps. The Versus Mode offers up quite a few options, making each map fertile ground for many fun-filled battles. Within the Versus menu there are several options for altering the nature of each game, including three distinct game types: Deathmatch, Destruction, and Strategic Victory.

INDIVIDUAL GAME SETTINGS

The settings noted below for multiplayer games (for resources etc.) are the default values that are supplied in The Outfit. These settings can be changed in the Game Settings Menu if you so choose.

Strategic Victory

Initial Command Points:	150
Starting Resources:	400 FUs
Respawn Delay:	15 Seconds
FU Crate Drops:	300 Seconds
Time Limit:	N/A

This version of the game ties the most closely into the single-player version In the Strategic Victory game the goal is to capture the Strategic Objectives scattered throughout the map. Controlling the enemy's key points triggers victory for you. In these games Field Unit management, Destruction on Demand unit placement and defensive/offensive strategies play a large roll in the game's outcome.

Destruction

Initial Command Points:	N/A
Starting Resources:	1000 FUs
Respawn Delay:	15 Seconds
FU Crate Drops:	300 Seconds
Time Limit:	5 Minutes

Destruction offers a new twist in that the winner is the player with the largest number of Field Units (FUs) acquired during gameplay. Don't be afraid to spend FUs as they are earned; all earned FUs are counted toward the end result, so you don't have to worry about spending your FUs and losing their credit during gameplay.

Deathmatch

Initial Command Points:	N/A
Starting Resources:	400 FUs
Respawn Delay:	15 Seconds
FU Crate Drops:	300 Seconds
Time Limit:	15 Minutes

Deathmatch is the classic game where the player with the most kills at the end of the timed game is the winner. Killing the enemy is the #1 priority, which means getting your hands on the best weapons becomes very important indeed.

Game Settings

The five categories in the Game Settings Menu are presented below along with the range of variance that is allowed:

- Starting Resources (FUs) – 0, 200, 400, 600, 1000
- Respawn Delay (Seconds) – 0, 5, 10, 15, 20
- FU Crate Drop (Seconds) – None, 200, 300, 400
- Time Limit (Minutes) – 5, 10, 15, 20, 25
- Initial Command Points – 50, 150, 300, 500

FU CRATE DROPS

Field Unit Crate Drops are just what they sound like. If the FU Crate Drop is set to 200 seconds, then every 200 seconds an FU Crate containing 200 FUs drops into the field of battle. This constant influx of money adds to the suspense in many of the games.

An FU Crate drops (on the left side of the screen).

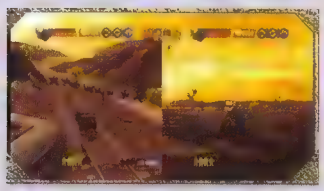
BLOOD VALLEY

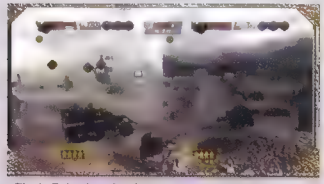
Blood Valley is aptly named. Crops grow very well in the confines of the valley. Some say that it's because soldiers have been fighting and dying in this canyon for millennia. The key locations in this map are shared between the two sides, making the dash to capture the Motor Pool particularly harrowing.



Blood Valley.

CITY IN RUINS

With the city leveled by heavy artillery, the civilians that were once here are long gone. Now it's time to see if it's the Allied or the Axis who have the guts to capture this area and take hold of the spoils of war. Each side has an Armory and a Motor Pool near their starting points. The Radio Tower is the objective that the two sides must fight over, and owning it could make the difference. That said, there are some great Armored Trains that can be used by either side to tilt the battle in one or the other's favor!



City in Ruins is a desolate area, and dangerous as well.

DAMNED FORTRESS

The Fortress has stood witness to the passing of armies for centuries. Now another battle will take place on its bloodstained hillside. The Allies need to eliminate this German HQ if they want to move any further into Normandy without heavy artillery raining down on their flank. In this mission, the Germans hold three Strategic Objectives, and they have the advantage of being in a fortress, but the Allies start closer to the Motor Pool (and there is only one), giving them an advantage with their armor.

The Allies have immediate access to armor in Damned Fortress

ESTATE ASSAULT

Axis HQ on one side, Allied HQ on the other. As luck would have it, Allied Command is positioned in a villa across the river of a nearby Axis HQ. Sergeant Thomas and his men initiated hostilities but the job of eliminating the enemy is up in the air. While there are two Radio Towers on this map, there is only one Armory and Motor Pool. The central road that leads directly from one HQ to the to the other is bound to be the most dangerous place to travel, so the best path to the Motor Pool and Armory is usually through the fields. The Armory and Motor Pool are slightly closer to the German side, but the Allies are slightly closer to their Radio Tower.

An Allied Artillery Strike can really soften the Axis defenses at their HQ.

The central road leads directly to the two HQs.

HEDGEROW COUNTRY

Artillery is about to break the morning silence over Normandy as the Axis prepare to bring their forces to clash with the Allies. The map contains a fairly large amount of distance between the enemy starting positions, and since both have a Motor Pool right off the bat, this mission has all the makings for a major tank battle. The Radio Tower lies closer to the Axis side, while the Armory favors the Allies.

The Germans are likely to capture the Radio Tower first.

HELL'S HALF ACRE

The V1 facility off the coast of France has been launching its rockets at London for far too long. The Allies need to move in and stop this Axis menace from pummeling the homeland any longer. This map encourages dangerous fun because the area is so compact. There is nowhere for anyone to run, and the fighting tends to be extremely intense. If the Allies can beat the Axis to the Motor Pool then they have a fighting chance against the German defenses near their starting point (which consist of AT Guns and MG nests).

This area is very compact, therefore the fighting is extra fierce.

MULTIPLAYER

INDUSTRIAL SECTOR

Located on the Ruhr valley, this last reserve of German manufacturing power is in danger of being destroyed. The Motor Pool favors the Germans in this mission, but if the Allies are quick they can take both the Radio Tower and the Armory while the Germans tie themselves up securing the Motor Pool. Still, with the Motor Pool being of such importance, it's easy to predict that the area around it is likely to be hotly contested. Use the trains to get around the perimeter of the map quickly and safely.

Meeting head-to-head on the perimeter train tracks.

NORMANDY FARMLAND

Where once existed a beautiful harvest, despair has been sown. The Germans attempt to control the area as do the Allies in the farmland of Normandy. Both sides start this map with a Motor Pool, making the Radio Tower and the Armory the key locations. The Armory is considerably closer to the German side, making it possible for them to create a defensive 'Maginot' type line of artillery.

OPPOSING FORCES

This hilly countryside, ancestral home to the Marichere Matte family, is about to bear witness to the Allied juggernaut as forces attempt to liberate the surrounding area. The Axis forces may have something to say about that. This is another wide-open map with only one each of the key buildings. Since four of the six objectives are in the northern portion of the map, it's a safe bet that the action is going to up there.

PUSHED TOO FAR

Outnumbered, relying on their high ground advantage, do the Germans have any chance of surviving the impending Allied attack? The answer to that question is 'yes, they do'. The Germans start on this map with both an Armory and a Motor Pool. If they are very aggressive they can move to capture one or both of the Armory and Motor Pool in the south before the Allies get there!

The Germans have a huge height advantage in their defensive battlements.

MULTIPLAYER MISSIONS

AMMO BLAST

U.S. Forces vs. Mujahideen

The Mujahideen are protecting an ammo stockpile located near the Gallery of the Khardiman Arts Center. U.S. forces have been dispatched to eliminate the Mujahideen and destroy their ammo cache. There are several rival resistance cells in the area that are hostile to both U.S. and Mujahideen forces. The cells also compete for control of the ammo cache—however, the Mujahideen commander can recruit them to help defend the cache from the Americans.

Host Mission Variables

Resistance Cell Presence

Normal: 1 to 3 active members per cell, moderate difficulty.

Difficult: 2 to 5 active members per cell, elite soldiers, will attack the Arts Center if the ammo cache is threatened.

None: No resistance cells.

TAKE THE CITADEL

Mujahideen vs. Al Ra'id

Mujahideen and the Al Ra'id forces are battling around the Khardiman Monastery. Both sides have secured a stronghold inside the monastery walls and are eager to gain control of the entire complex. Each side can use its explosives to destroy the enemy's munitions pile and stronghold. There are also gates in the monastery that lead to the fighting outside the walls. If a soldier can open these gates, he can recruit friendly reinforcements to help with the battle inside.

Host Mission Variables

C4 at Ammo Caches: The explosives needed to destroy the stronghold must be picked up at an ammo cache first.

No Gate Reinforcements: No reinforcements are available from the gates.

No Grenades: No grenades for either side.

Battle Size

Skirmish: One replacement for each character.

Conflict (default): Two replacements for each character.

Siege: Six replacements for each character.

Unlimited: Unlimited replacements available.

INSURGENCY IN THE STREETS

U.S. FORCES VS. AL RA'ID

U.S. forces are attempting to eradicate the remnants of the Al Ra'id from Khardiman. Commander bin Fassi of the Al Ra'id is attempting to gather recruits and support from the populous before fleeing the city. A news team has gotten word of this and is on its way to film a possible demonstration. The U.S. wants to avoid a media circus and must stop bin Fassi before he can drum up enough support for a large anti-American demonstration. The Al Ra'id must stay alive, gather support from the civilians, and bring them back to the recruitment center before the news team arrives.

HOST MISSION VARIABLES

No BMP: The Al Ra'id start without a BMP but have more RPG soldiers.

Recruit Attrition

Normal: Recruited civilians will abandon the Al Ra'id cause if the U.S. controls the area in front of the recruitment center.

Loyal Citizens: Recruited civilians won't abandon the Al Ra'id.

Cowardly Citizens: Recruited civilians will abandon the cause at an accelerated rate if the U.S. controls the area in front of the recruitment center.

BRING ME TARIQ AL-SADIF

MERCENARIES VS. MILITIA VS. AL RA'ID VS. MUJAHIDEEN

Tariq Al-Sadif was Al-Afad's chief aid, and it is believed he has stolen valuable Zekistani treasures and hidden them in the Parliament building somewhere. Each faction is interested in acquiring the treasure for their own reasons. Each side must find Tariq in the Parliament building and get him to tell them where the treasure has been hidden. Once it has been acquired, they must leave the building before they are stopped by their enemies.

HOST MISSION VARIABLES

Amount of Treasure

One Treasure: There is only one treasure hidden in the Parliament.

Two Treasures: There are two treasure locations in the Parliament and two pieces must be acquired to win. After securing one, it is possible to obtain more at the original treasure locations.

Three Treasures: There are three hidden treasure locations and three pieces must be found to win. After securing one, it is possible to obtain more at the original treasure locations.

No Grenades: All sides are without frag grenades.

RADIO CLASH

COALITION VS. MUJAHIDEEN

The Mujahideen have taken over the radio tower and broadcasting facilities within the walls of the Monastery. They are using these to propagandize citizens and scattered forces in the area. The Coalition forces are charged with ending this threat to their control by destroying the Tower. The Mujahideen must defend the tower and repel the Coalition attack.

HOST MISSION VARIABLES

Number of Grenades

None: No frag grenades for anyone.

A Blackhawk helicopter has been shot down in the Projects area of Khardiman. Mujahideen soldiers have reached the crash site and control the area around it. Two U.S. squads have been sent in to clear the area and get to the chopper. The Mujahideen must defend the area and repel the U.S. rescue attempt. The U.S. must attempt to reach the chopper area and destroy any nearby Mujahideen Safehouses.

HOST MISSION VARIABLES

Recapture Spawn Points: Safehouses that the U.S. has captured can be recaptured by the Mujahideen forces.

EXPLOSIVE SITUATION

U.S. FORCES VS. AL RA'ID

Al Ra'id forces plan to detonate a bomb near the Embassy. Either the Embassy itself and/or the nearby Marketplace will be the target. The Al Ra'id must plant the bomb at one of the locations and detonate it before 1900 hours. The U.S. must attempt to prevent the Al Ra'id from planting the bomb and must disarm it before it explodes if one gets planted.

HOST MISSION VARIABLES

Recapture Spawn Points: Safe houses that the U.S. has captured can be recaptured by the Mujahideen forces.

Bomb Site Options

Embassy or Marketplace: The bomb can be planted at either location.

AMONG THE SNIPERS

U.S. FORCES VS. AL RA'ID

An American AC-130 Spectre gunship has been shot down into the Khamar River behind the Bathhouse of Khardiman. The survivors of the crash have made their way into the Bathhouse grounds. Al Ra'id forces followed the pilots and captured two of the four survivors. U.S. forces have been airdropped into the Bathhouse garden and must attempt to rescue the hostages. The Al Ra'id is attempting to foil the rescue attempt and capture the remaining pilots.

River Rats: Bravo Team enters the level from the bathhouse instead of the Garden.

Grenade Load-Out

Standard: One frag grenade for each character.

Excessive: Three frag grenades for each character.

None: No frag grenades.

INSURGENCY CONTROL UPDATES

Insurgent Fighters are controlled differently than Friendly Forces.

SWITCH FIGHTERS ORDERS

Pressing the Team Select Map button switches you to the closest Insurgent Fighter you're looking at. To switch between Insurgent fighters, turn the camera and look in each fighter's direction. If you're not looking at any fighters under your command, pressing the Team Select Map button has no effect.

You can also hold the Team Select button to access the Insurgent Fighters Team Map. Then you can select Insurgent Fighters the same way you select Friendly Forces.

ACTION 2 BUTTON

The Insurgency characters can use Group Orders to move multiple characters with one action. Pressing the Action 2 button without the Move Cursor active adds the current character to the player's Group. The Group Indicator appears next to that character's position. Pressing the Action 2 Button again removes the character from the Group. Once characters are added to the Group, pressing the Action 2 button with the Movement Cursor active moves all members of the Group into cover positions near the Movement Cursor. This is the easiest way of moving multiple Insurgency characters around the map.

ACTION 3 BUTTON

Some missions allow Insurgency characters to recruit NPC soldiers into a Posse. Getting into proximity of a potential recruit causes him to be added to the selected character's Posse. The Action 3 button prompts are displayed once recruits are acquired. Recruits now follow the selected character. Pressing the Action 3 button with the Movement Cursor active causes the Posse to move to the selected area. Pressing the Action 3 button without the Movement Cursor active sets the Posse into stay mode and they stop following the selected character. Pressing it again toggles the follow mode back on.

SPAWNING

When Insurgency Fighters are killed, they do not need to be taken to a CASEVAC like their Coalition counterparts. Instead, you can call in more reinforcements via the Spawn Map. To access the Spawn Map, hold the Team Select Map button and then press the Team Selection/Grenade Menu button.

Spawn locations are displayed with a specific icon on the Spawn Map. Locations not yet acquired or owned by another Faction are grey, and those available to the player are colored with his Faction's color. The number of reinforcements available is displayed at the top of the screen above the map.

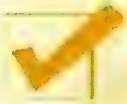
To spawn a new character, select an available spawn location. The characters that can be spawned from that location are displayed below the map. Select the desired character and press the Action button to spawn him from that location. The new soldier becomes visible in your Unit Icons. The total number or available reinforcements is then reduced by one.

INSURGENCY HUD UPDATES

When controlling Insurgent fighters, each is assigned an Arabic symbol. These symbols appear in place of the Unit Icons in the HUD. These same symbols appear over the fighters in the world.

ORDERS ICON WINDOW

This symbol indicates when you are standing near an object on which your team can perform a special action. Pressing the Action button orders your team to perform whatever action is associated with the object.



This symbol indicates when you are standing near a neutral or enemy Spawn Node. Pressing the Action button orders a member of your team to enter the safehouse door and capture the Spawn Node for your team.

This symbol indicates that you are standing near a friendly Spawn Node. Pressing the Action button orders the fighter you're with to leave the battle (he enters the safehouse and disappears).

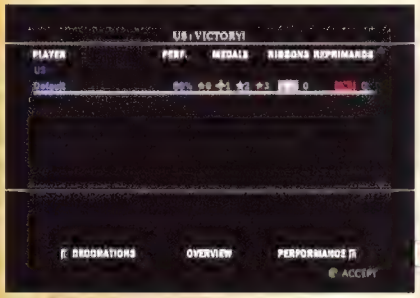
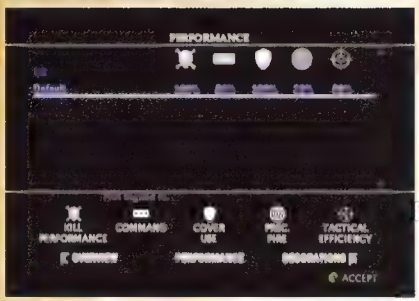
SCORING SYSTEM

PERFORMANCE VALUES

Each mission play-through turns out five performance ratings (canceled play-throughs in multiplayer not included). These individual ratings are averaged together to generate the final performance rating. The individual ratings are:





RATING	DETAILS
Kill Performance	Increases based on kills per second. 0.015 kills per second yields a 100% kill performance.
Command Performance	Percentage of time soldiers spend following orders. The more you keep your soldiers active (moving, If all of your soldiers are active 65% of the time, you receive a 100% Command Performance rating.
Cover Performance	This rating represents the amount of time you expose your soldiers to hostile gunfire. Sitting or running out of cover reduces this rating. If none of your soldiers are ever engaged (i.e., never seen by theenemy), you receive a score of 0%. If your soldiers are in cover at least95% of the time they're engaged, you receive a 100% cover performance.
Precision Fire	This percentage rating represents your accuracy using precision fire. The more accurate you are, the higher the rating. The score ramps up for the first three shots. If only one shot is fired, your rating is .3333 x Accuracy; if two shots are fired, then the rating is .6666 x Accuracy. After that, your Precision Fire performance is equal to your accuracy.
Tactical Efficiency	This represents how well you use ammo. The more time you spend firing at hostiles in cover, the lower this score. If you fire only at vulnerable targets, then you receive a 100% rating.

Bring a great deal of weaponry into this level; there are many grouped, well-equipped enemies. The key to success is to draw enemies away from their groups. Hide against the walls in the first room and get the initial Tengu to come forward by knocking. It's even better if you have traps set after the hallway to stop the Tengu's movement or increase his Cost.

FAST ALERTS

This base is already on high alert. Consequently, any minor slip brings extra guards from the entrance and keeps the alarm triggered until you clear the local area of foes. It's best to avoid being seen at all, and fast kills or knockouts are the way to achieve this.

Repeat the Tengu trap to lure the Hi-Tech trooper away from his buddy. Stomp him and go after the final guard in the room ahead. An electric floor that blocks major advances is in the passageway on the left. Launch an RC Missile into the box through the wall to open the way. There are two cards at the passage's terminus: an M47 and an RPG7. An MGS1 pack drops in here from the Hi-Tech Evasion.

In the room on the far right, block the ladder by keeping someone at the top. Throw Stun Grenades down on the trio of guards or tear through them with lead. The Hi-Tech: Grappling soldier has an MGS1 pack.

If you really want that RPG7 over there, it's quite easy to get, but you have to have a card with Hang. Equip it and crawl across the upper ledge near the initial ladder. Though there is a wall there, a hanging person avoids any obstacles. Pull your character back up, get the RPG7, and then drop down.

Hurry through the room and use the far ladder to reach the last bit of the map. It's easy to ambush the patroller on the left from behind or the flank. Don't hit him when he is on the right edge of his route; that can bring his commander. Take down the patroller quietly and double-team the commander when he has at least a few points of Cost accrued. With luck, he won't see it coming! Melee weapons are great against him because they break his substantial supply of equipment while injuring him and causing bleeding. When the commander falls, he loses his grip on an MGS1 pack.

Before leaving, use explosives to knock holes into several of the walls. Take out the ones in the lower left, upper left, and upper right. These have free cards! Crawl through them to avoid the large IR sensors in all of the rooms. Don't be greedy and blast the remaining three rooms; all have guards in them.

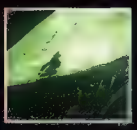
NOW YOU DO WHAT THEY TOLD YA



This boss fight is another clear example of deck preparation being essential to success. Without too many melee weapons or damage mitigation abilities, your characters end up laboring to survive while the test subject has his way. Instead, bring direct fire weapons—lots of them. Create a build for each character as if he or she is going to fight alone—no support, no help—just a single strong set of direct-fire weaponry on each. One suggestion is a 5.56mm weapon set for Snake and a 9mm set for Venus.

Rush toward the red vats at the center of the room, and have one character hide behind each, facing each other. The test subject is likely to leap to the ceiling and head down the center. This puts him between your characters, which is exactly where you want him. His primary attack is to control a character, making him or her fight his or her buddy. If this fails on the first try, your team will destroy the subject. Equip your weapons, fire at will, and watch the paper doll shred.

However, you can't rely on the test subject's mind control to fail. If it succeeds, continue dealing damage to the test subject while you run around corners to continually break line-of-sight with your "ally" in pursuit. This Costs your controlled ally enough to prevent him or her from getting in many attacks. Nevertheless, your goal is to keep getting behind the test subject for greater damage.

The boss occasionally drops mines on the floor. These cause substantial delays for anyone caught in their blast. If necessary, lure your controlled buddy over the mines to get them off your back.

Stay close to the boss; he can darken the area, making it easier for him to hide. At that point, it's essential to look around carefully with each block of movement. This prevents you from wasting effort and ending up in a a poor firing position.

With this style and a proper deck, the battle is already won. Add a Ration or two for safety if you have any problems.

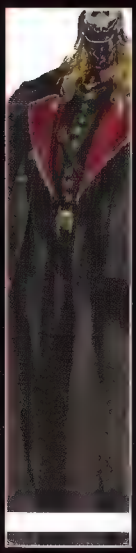
FINISH HIM!



The security chief has watched your team take apart the test subjects, and he isn't a stupid man. Instead of trying to go against you alone, he has brought six security guards to assist him. During the fight, they close in and attack. Luckily, these soldiers aren't as well armed as the commanders or defense units that you've seen elsewhere. But they are somewhat obnoxious and distracting.

Bring melee weapons, area-of-effect attacks (Grenade+ is a very nice card, and RC Missiles are decent when used very carefully), and direct-fire weaponry. Movement is a non-issue, especially because you want the guards to come to you. This divides them and keeps the entire group from swarming at the same time.

Shoot the barrels when the guards or the chief wander near them. You can accomplish this with extremely fast weapons, and it adds some damage. A pistol is ideal.

As usual, get one or both of your characters behind the chief when he's on your side of the field. This allows for cover fire and a huge increase in damage output. The chief likes his Front Evades anyway, making it even more obvious that his backside is the best side.

With such a fine output of weaponry and a few Cost Reducers to keep things moving, the fight will end early and with a very high rank.

MAN VERSUS MACHINE

Take a long look through both characters' decks before you start the next encounter. The Metal Gear you face is substantially upgraded from the earlier model, and you must destroy five armored sections. That totals 3,300 Life worth of armored hard points in your near future. You should load as many FAP-92B/Cs into your decks as you have. Add other missile cards too; it's hard to have too many in this encounter.

For best results, take a few movement cards, Rations, as many missiles as possible, Cost Reducers (heavily), and direct-fire weaponry if you have a few solid cards that are anti-armor and high damage.

As the scene plays before the fight, notice that Snake and Venus ignore their enemies. Instead, they talk to each other and trade ideas about how to fight the Metal Gear. This is both amusing and somewhat helpful.

The Metal Gear fight's first stage is against the two arm systems and the lower body. Destroy these at long range whenever possible. Separate your characters to prevent a double "quick death" from happening and to spread out the damage. The fight gets a tad harder when the Metal Gear starts losing pieces, so there is no rush to get any single system destroyed.

Though there are several actions at the Metal Gear's disposal, only two have tremendous power. The deadlier one of this pair is, amusingly, the Metal Gear's movement. By running and jumping around, this Metal Gear can instantly put characters out of action, even when they aren't tremendously close to the machine. That is the number one reason why you must remain spread out during the entire fight. If one character collapses, have the other run to even greater range, fire missiles when possible, and wait for auto recovery to kick in.

The other nasty trick is a Jehuty effect that destroys all of your equipment and effects. Consequently, powerful direct-fire weaponry can last only so long in this fight. This is yet another advantage of use weapons (missiles, PTRS-1941, and such).

After you destroy the three initial body parts, your characters are sent back to the warehouse's entrance. The head system is now exposed; shoot at that, but don't rush. Instead, save a sum of strong missiles in reserve. Your goal is to destroy the head and still have a great deal of firepower set aside. The final system, the high turret and cockpit, becomes exposed for a brief time while the head is repairing. If your group can't inflict damage quickly enough, the head restores itself and the process is reset.

Unleash all attacks and cards in hope of destroying the final system. Spend Cost Reducers without hesitation. If that system goes down, the fight is over and your characters win again!

Mountain Top - Kransogorje Mountain (From MGS 3)

You may remember Mountain Top, or Krasnogorje Mountain, from playing through the regular campaign of Metal Gear Solid 3 Snake Eater. While not as big as many of the other multiplayer levels, Mountain Top's terrain can be deceiving. There are trenches to run and jump into, shacks to hide in, ladders to climb up, crates to get shot through, and a whole underground hallway to deal with. This, of course, is all played out on a steep incline. To top it off, the mountainous environment clashes with almost all of the soldiers' uniforms, so don't expect a lot of help from camouflage.

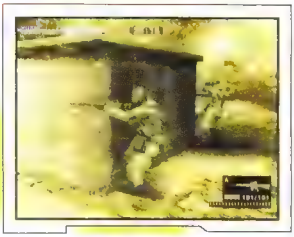
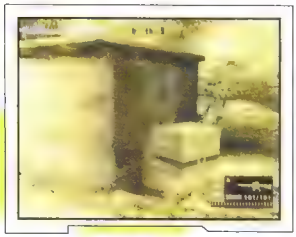
GENERAL TACTICS

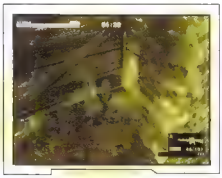
THE SOUTHERN SHACK AND CRATES

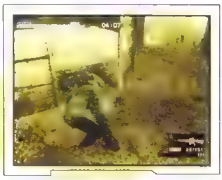
USING THE SOUTHEASTERN SHACK AS A VANTAGE POINT

Use the Southeastern Shack (1) at the bottom of the mountain for cover, going to either edge of the shack and scanning the area to spot your opponents. Hiding in this area gives you a good vantage point on almost all the key areas of the map, such as at the entrance of the Underground Hallway (4), or up on the sniping points of The Main Hilltop (7). When you spot an enemy high above, instead of exposing yourself by moving out into the open, lean out using the First-Person View mode to make your shot. If someone spots you, duck out of the way or hide in a box near the doorway.









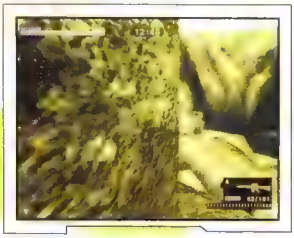
Make sure you keep close to the back of the shack so your head's not a target from above. When not shooting or surveying the area, move away from either side so your opponents don't get an idea of where you're hiding. If your position is compromised, either equip a Box to hide, or slide down to the area just south and work your way around to the west.

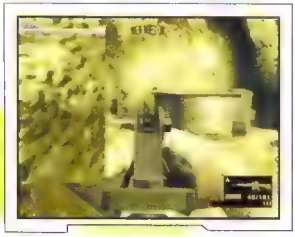
CREEPING CRAWLERS

A good rule of thumb is to always keep an eye on the crawlspaces — especially the crawlspace in front of Southeastern Shack (1). Since this area is used as a sniping point to pick players off, it's possible for an opponent to flip down and crawl into it when you're not looking and then wipe you and your teammates out before you even know what hit you.

SNIPING USING THE DIRT WALL

When climbing up the first set of ladders in the southwestern part of the mountain, use the Dirt Wall (6b) on the hill as cover from snipers to the east. You can also hide here, leaning out to shoot anyone visible up on The Main Hilltop (4) or up on the Center Shack (2). This tactic isn't fool proof however, as anyone on the other side of the Southeastern Shack (1), or down by the Southern Crates (8a), can easily spot you.





THE UNDERGROUND HALLWAY

APPROACHING THE UNDERGROUND HALLWAY

When approaching the southern entrance to the Underground Hallway (7a), watch out for enemies lying in the prone position at the top of the First Incline. Players like to sit here and mow down people who rush in, since they see you before you see them.

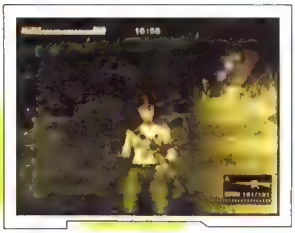
ALTERNATIVES

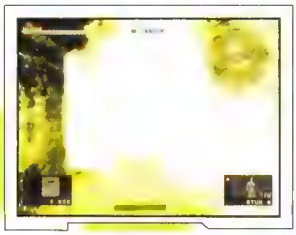
If need be, take another route to get into the Hallway, or use a Flash Grenade to try to blitz them. The latter option can be a bit dicey, as the doorway into the Hallway is very small, and the person hiding in there will probably see you before you get the opportunity to lob the grenade.

USE SMART TACTICS

It becomes a little easier to take out your enemies once you proceed into the Underground Hallway, as you have a larger area in which to work and the Second Incline (7b) isn't as steep as the first

When you first approach the Second Incline, put your back to the wall just to the west of it and then scope out any enemies hanging around the corner. If you see anyone, quickly stop and stay where you are. Instead of rushing in, equip your Stun Grenades and temporarily stun them. Once the grenade explodes, un-equip your box and run around the corner, gun at the ready. Taking out your foe should be easy if he's disoriented.

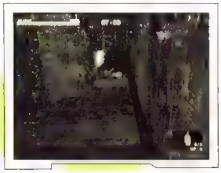


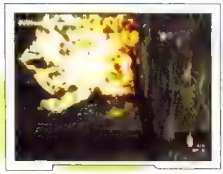


BOX IT UP

Before you throw any grenades, you should always protect yourself by equipping a Box. As long as you're inside a Box, you're immune to the flash of Stun Grenades. It's possible to quickly un-equip the Box, throw the grenade at your opponent, and just as quickly re-equip the Box before the grenade explodes.

CLIMBING THE LADDER





Before climbing up the ladder that leads from the Underground Hallway (7) to the Northeastern Shack (5) at the top of the mountain, use grenades to smoke out any people or traps that might be hiding/set up there. WP Grenades work wonders for sending people running and dispatching Claymores. Also be wary of enemies watching you from above when you come up the incline, and take evasive action if they jump down into the Underground Hallway with you.

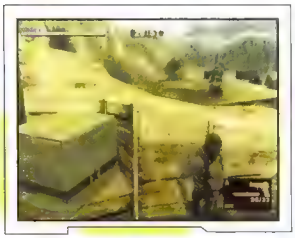
HIDING PLACE

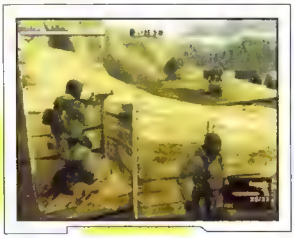
You can hide near the top of the Underground Hallway (7), as there's a small corner space (7c) to the right of the ladder. Get in to position and equip a Box. If an opponent rushes up the hallway toward the ladder, you can quickly un-equip the Box and grab them with CQC. However, use caution when attempting this tactic — your enemy may get suspicious of the Box from above in the Northeastern Shack (5) and fire down on it.

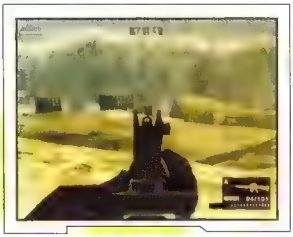
CENTER AND NORTHWESTERN SHACKS

SHOOT USING THE FOOTHOLDS

When on the middle part of the mountain near the Center Shack (2), use the footholds/steps (2a, 2b, and even as far away as 4a) leading up from the trenches as sniping points. Get into position and crouch in wait inside a Box. When you see an enemy running toward your position, you can easily gun him down.

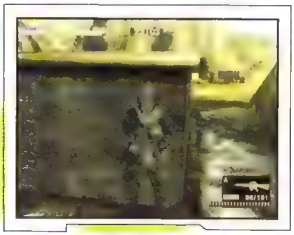


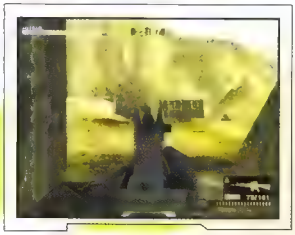


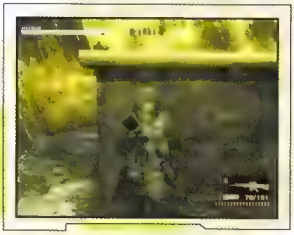


COVER THE CRATES AND LADDERS

A good way to cover the Wooden Crates on the Hill (6) and the ladders to the south of them is to hide behind the Northwestern Shack (3) and scan the area for the enemy. When you see someone, lean out and take him out, then quickly duck back behind the wall. Be sure to look behind you every once in a while so no one sneaks up on you — especially an enemy you just killed looking for revenge.







SHOOT THE CRATES

If you know an enemy is hiding behind any of the wooden crates in the level (Such as 1a, 6a, and 8a), fire through them for an easy kill. If you aim high enough, you may also get a headshot. This is especially useful for the Wooden Crates on the Hill (6), since the crates there are near a ladder and are an obvious hiding place for anyone trying to sneak up the mountain.

TREAD CAREFULLY

When trying to evade an attack while on the western Hill with the Wooden Crates (6) near the Deep Chasm (9), be careful not to flip off the mountain and kill yourself. This goes especially double when carrying the Kerotan or Gako in Capture and Rescue Mission Modes. If you flip off the mountain while holding either of these token items, the other team gets an automatic win.

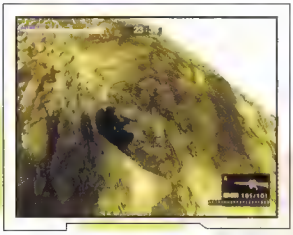
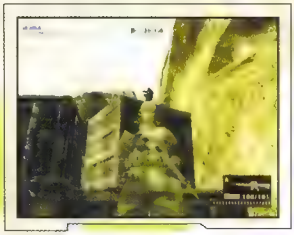
THE MAIN HILLTOP

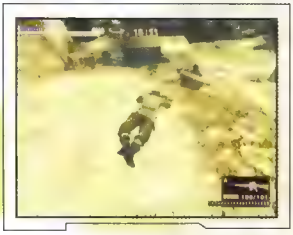
AN OBVIOUS SNIPING POINT – TOO OBVIOUS!

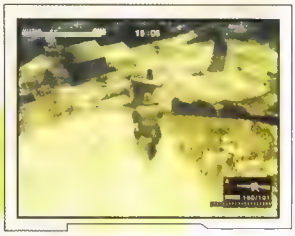
You can use the small inclined ledge (4b) on the most middle-eastern point of the map as a sniping point. However, there is a great amount of risk involved in doing so. This area is hazardous — you are exposed to the enemy from many angles (such as from the shack below (1), and the dirt ridge (6b) to the west), and you become even more of a target when getting down from this position (the way the ledge is set up, there's no way to get back up to The Main Hilltop without first sliding down further). That being said, this sniping point can still be useful, and if you plan to use it, use it with strategy. Utilize what cover you have to the west by moving back and surveying what's below. If you get a kill, don't stick around too long afterwards. Once someone knows you're up here, you become cannon fodder.





The Main Hilltop (4) on the middle-eastern most part of the level is a great sniping point, especially compared to the small inclined ledge (4b). Lay prone, and pinpoint your targets. Once a target is acquired, pop up and quickly take them down with a headshot.





THE NORTHEASTERN SHACK

PROTECT YOUR BACK USING CLAYMORES

The ladder at the Northeastern Shack (5), which is accessed from below by the Underground Hallway (7), can be a problem. It's location leaves you unprotected from behind while using the Main Hilltop (4) as a vantage point. To combat this problem and protect your back while sniping from The Main Hilltop, head up to the Northeastern Shack at the top of the mountain and plant Claymores for a defensive booby-trap.

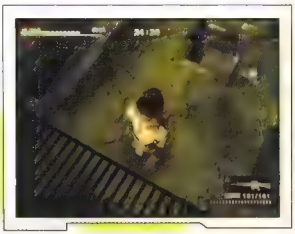
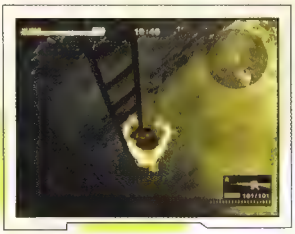
Plant two Claymores in the Northeastern Shack (5), making sure that you put at least one set of laser beams over the hole in the floor, crossing over the ladder top. Hide a third Claymore outside so that its laser beams cross over the threshold of the door, and it is partially obscured to those running out of the shack. By planting these, at worst you have an alarm for when enemies are heading up through the shack, and at best they will deal damage and injury.

KILL THE MONITOR
Use a weapon and take out the Monitor at the top of the mountain so no one can watch you as you work.

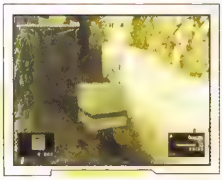
DROPPING INTO THE UNDERGROUND HALLWAY

When dropping down into the Underground Hallway (7) from the Northeastern Shack (5) be careful not to flip or run into the hole — you'll hurt your ankle and take some damage. Instead of running, use the directional pad and sneak slowly off the edge to hop down and into the Underground Hallway below.





BOX FOR SPEED

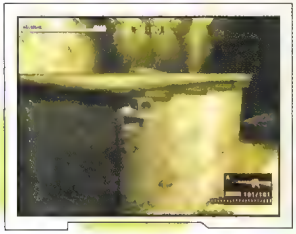


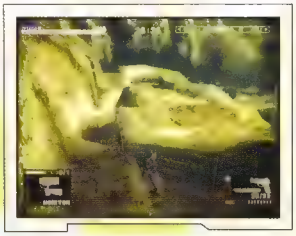
When heading uphill on the mountain — especially when you're going up to the shack in the northeast (5) by way of the closest trench (5a) — use a Box. Not only do you run uphill faster, but your head won't be poking up above the ridge and be a target.

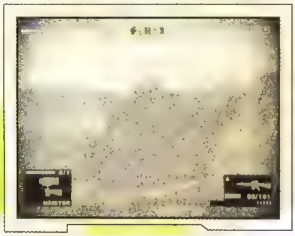
SPEEDY RESULTS
Using the box for speed is a good general rule of thumb, especially on maps where a lot of the terrain is uphill.

BE MINDFUL OF THE MONITORS

This level has Monitors (labeled M on the map) that can be used to view your enemies' positions and vice versa. If the light on the Monitor is blinking, this means that someone else is using it to and can see you. Shoot at them to disable them.



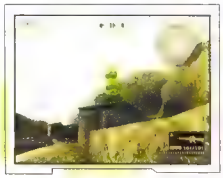


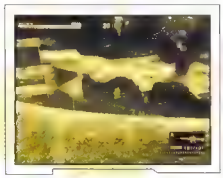


CAPTURE MISSION

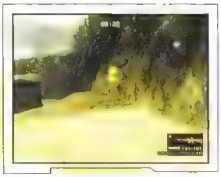
The Kerotan only spawns in one place on this map — on the hill between the Middle Shack (2) and the entrance to the Underground Hallway (7a)

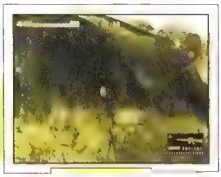
It's a mad dash for either of the teams to get the Kerotan quickly. The Red Team may have a little more of an advantage since they are slightly closer to their goal point. If you're coming up from below, watch for headshots. If you're above, go for the headshot. And if you get the Kerotan and need to take it down the mountain quickly, be tricky and flip over the trench and the small dips in the broken wall (located to the southwest of the Kerotan) in order to get to the blue goal point a bit quicker. If you're stuck in the trenches, use a Box to keep your head down and hope for the best.





RESCUE MISSION



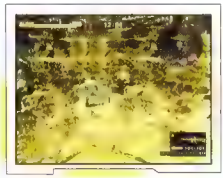


The Gako spawns at the very top of the mountain (near S2), and is very hard to grab. The only way to successfully reach it is to use smart tactics, such as equipping a Box and quickly eliminating any enemies encountered.

SNEAKING MISSION

The sets of Microfilm spawn in two very different places on this map. The first location is out in the open, and is only covered by two sets of wooden crates (8a), which you and your enemy can shoot through (not to mention snipe from above). While this makes it harder to pick up, it's also really close to the goal located in the Southeastern Shack (1).

The second location is near the top of the Underground Hallway, just under the Northeastern Shack (5). It's a lot harder for the enemy to get to it with any amount of speed. If everyone is down at the bottom of the hill (you can use your Monitor to help determine this), it may be better to grab this Microfilm and take the long trek to the western goal, or climb back up and approach the southern goal by flipping your way down the mountain.



TEAM SPAWN POINTS

Check out bradygames.com/codevault to save an extra 10% on all BradyGames Official Strategy Guides featured in this issue!

When playing any mode with teams, players spawn around the general area of two points (S1 and S2). The first set of players spawn around the southernmost point of the hill near the Southeastern Hut (1) and the Lower Hill Near the Ladders (8). The second set of players spawn more toward the top of the mountain, near the Center Shack (2), the Main Hilltop (4), or even as far away as the Northeastern Shack (5). When you're running around the level, note these as your hot zones. If someone on the other team suddenly dies, be cautious— they may spawn right where you're standing and target you for an instant kill.

The Genma

Buy the Official Onimusha: Dawn of Dreams Strategy Guide at bradygames.com/codevault

Swordsman

The Swordsman is the lowest level Genma enemy and, as such, the easiest to kill. Swordsmen often broadcast their attacks by holding their swords high in the air and pausing before an attack. They can be slain with any basic attack or combo you throw at them.

Axeman

The Axeman is a bit heartier than the lowly Swordsman as its defenses are better and it can utilize more than one attack. It also possesses a longer reach. Nevertheless, they are still quite easy to kill and no Onimusha should fear them. The larger Axeman G poses more of a threat as its axe is much larger and its armor considerably thicker.

Archer

Archers fire flaming arrows from great distances and use them to stun your character just as he's about to engage other enemies in battle. Although Archers are extremely easy to kill, they should always be your first target whenever they are present. Otherwise, they continue to be a nuisance and make your other battles that much more difficult. The deadlier Archer G is just as easily slain, but it fires three flaming arrows simultaneously in a spread pattern.

Toyotomi Foot Soldiers

Toyotomi Foot Soldiers and Grunts are the most common of the enemies encountered and are often seen traveling in large numbers, especially later in the game. They possess greater durability than the Genma Swordsman and are smarter as well. They will attempt to surround their foe and mix in some defensive maneuvers with their attacks. Although any number of attacks can be used successfully against them, the easiest way to kill them is with a Chain Critical.

Spearman

Spearmen often attack in groups of two and three and immediately charge in the direction of their enemies with the intent of impaling them on their lengthy weapons. Although it's possible to defend against these attacks and counter once they stop running, you'll find it best to stand beside their path and attack just as they near your position. They are one of the easier enemies to strike with a Critical attack and from there you can Chain Critical the others.

Three-Eyes

Three-Eyes are not the most common enemy, often only seen accompanying a certain female member of the Triumvirate. They come at you with surprising speed as they appear to slide across the ground in packs. They possess a blade on each hand and are quick to attack with it. Use standard slashes to beat them back, since they can avoid most attacks that take longer to perform.

Fugaku

Fugaku are large sentry-like members of the Genma clan that are comprised of a skeleton wrapped in armor. Most Fugaku ignore the Onimusha unless the item they are charged with guarding is threatened. Fugaku move slowly and with a purpose and their attacks lack the speed or fluidity of most other enemies. That being said, their attacks do deliver significant damage and should be avoided at all costs. There are two major features to a Fugaku that bear mentioning. First, their health meter is actually double-layered: the green line represents their armor and the underlying yellow line represents their final health. Secondly, Fugaku explode in a ball of flames when killed. Never use a Finisher move to terminate them, and be sure to call away any allies as the Fugaku nears its end. The larger, dark black Fugaku 57 has a longer weapon and more resilience.

Dark Dragon

Dark Dragons are particularly pesky because they have the ability to attack with four bladed-arms and can burrow into the earth and drill up at their prey from underfoot. Dark Dragons don't wait around to be hit too often before going underground so the best way to kill them is to stand in one place, wait for the ground to rumble and dust to fly and perform a Finisher move before the Dark Dragon drills up through the ground.

Dark Spiders

Dark Spiders leap up to the ceiling or near walls and hang out of reach with their webs. When on the ground, the Dark Spider will cast a double-image that can make picking out the real Dark Spider quite tricky. It's not uncommon to approach a Dark Spider and watch as your sword slides straight through an apparition. Counter this by attacking anything that moves and by running around and slashing the sword over and over. Also, if Ohatsu is in your party, switch to her and shoot the Dark Spiders down while they hang overhead.

Dark Crow

The Dark Crow is seldom encountered outside of a Test of Valor, but it is a formidable foe nonetheless. The Dark Crow flies overhead and attacks with lasers that angle downward towards the ground. Although this attack is easy to avoid, the only real way to hit it (unless Ohatsu is in your party) is to wait for it to swoop in for a slashing attack and counterattack. Once hit, the Dark Crow is knocked to the ground and susceptible to a host of different attacks. The Dark Crow carries little armor and once knocked from the sky, can be killed rather easily.

Dark Puppet

The Dark Puppet is a ghostly assailant that is little more than a spirit cloaked in armor. It is a fast, agile enemy that attacks with leaps and spins and carries a sharp blade. What sets the Dark Puppet apart from other enemies is that it can only be destroyed through Purification. Whittle its health down to the point where the next hit will kill it, and sheathe your weapon and use a Purification attack instead.

Fleanceous

The Fleanceous has the unique ability to turn itself invisible and attack with lengthy tentacle-like arms. When encountering a Fleanceous, look for a glimmer of blue light to signal its presence and immediately tap the X Button to absorb it back into the visible plane. Once it is visible, it remains so until it gets the opportunity to go invisible. Don't give it this chance. Stay on it and continue to attack the Fleanceous while you know where it is. But don't touch it with your person, as its electrical energy can stun even an Onimusha.

Lennox

The Lennox is a large, immobile plant-like creature that has a magical control over other nearby enemies and barriers. There are times—especially in the Oni Mansion—when it will not be possible to proceed without first killing this creature. It is highly durable and can suffer a lot of damage before being destroyed. Although it is not something to fear, it does have one attack. Watch for it to pulse and spin in place and quickly back away. These motions are its signal that is about to emit a poisonous gas cloud. If caught in the cloud, immediately use an Antidote to counter the poison's effects.

Bomber

The Bomber makes its home in Mt. Hiei and the surrounding areas and is not so much a direct threat, as it is a nuisance. The Bomber places a keg of explosives down on the ground and then runs off while shrieking with high-pitched laughter. The Bomber can be killed with just a few quick slashes, but it often vanishes into thin air before you get the chance—unless you link to it with a Chain Critical. Your best bet is to just keep away from the explosives and move on.

Cannon Genma

The Cannon Genma is a large stationary four-legged armament that fires an explosive blast straight ahead every several seconds. Although the larger, black Cannon Genma occasionally spins in place to take aim on you, the more common Cannon Genma fires endlessly in the direction it faces. Run up to the Cannon Genma and give it a good swift kick to make it rotate 45-degrees in place. Beware though, as it always rotates in the clockwise direction! Don't be caught in front of its next blast as you attempt to rotate it to face other Genma.

Gacha and Don Gacha

The Gacha and Don Gacha are large, hulking beasts that wield powerful spiked clubs. They spin around like a wobbly top and knock anything in their paths across the room. The larger, more durable, Don Gacha also possesses a large horn on its head that it uses to impale foes. When a Gacha or Don Gacha is present, always focus your attacks on it and ignore any nearby lesser enemies. Oni Magic and Chain Critical attacks work wonders against these beasts.

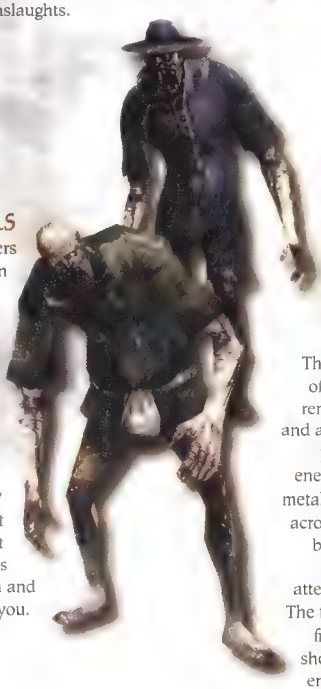
Dordo and Dordio

The Dordo and its larger, stronger cousin the Dordio are both masters of the sword and wielders of powerful magic. Their primary attack is to use their sword's serrated edge slice their victim with repeated jabs and twists. They can also shoot a magical beam of energy towards their quarry and reel him in like a hapless fish. If caught in this magical trap, wait to get right next to the Dordio and unleash an Oni Magic attack before it can begin the stabbing attack it specializes in. They are best defeated by utilizing Oni Magic. Should you face more than one at a time, consider triggering Onimusha Mode if you have to in order to survive their onslaughts.

Gyaran

These spherical orbs float just out of reach—and often out of sight—and steal freed souls before you can absorb them. Should you notice souls immediately zipping skyward, it's because there's a Gyaran nearby. Press the X Button to Vacuum the Gyaran within range of your attack and immediately slash at it with a Thrust attack. Don't let the Gyaran get too close as it will slam into your character and attempt to suck souls from your collection.



Lost Souls

These undead wanderers roam their former towns in large quantities in attempt to swarm the living and exact revenge for their untimely deaths. Lost Souls are weakly armed and have little armor. Also, because of their large numbers they are the perfect enemy for assembling a lengthy Chain Critical with. But beware of the giant Lost Soul as he does possess significantly more strength and attempts to grab hold of you.

Diamond and Xenodiamond

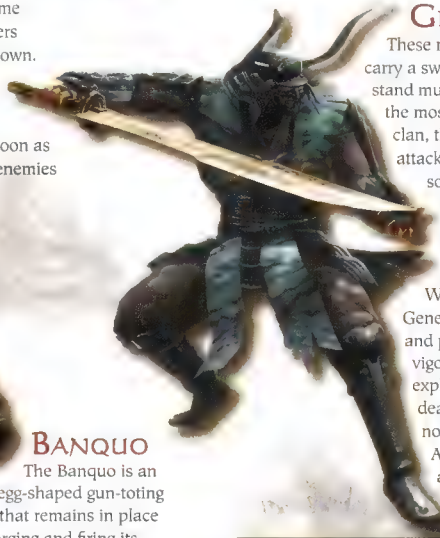
These boxer-like members of the Genma clan are reminiscent of Roberto and attack with powerful punches, laced with energy. They wear thick metal armor, move swiftly across the battlefield, and are not to be taken lightly. Use a Lift attack to knock them off their feet and attempt a follow-up Finisher move. The tougher Xenodiamond can also fire magic energy pulses from its shoulder-mounted emitters. These enemies should be eliminated as soon as they are encountered, and not given a chance to attack.

Menteith

This enormous ogre-like creature is similar to the Gacha, only many times larger. The Menteith and Giga Menteith are so big that they can't even move! Instead they stand in place and swing their massive clubs and pound the earth with shockwave-inducing power. Never approach a Menteith head-on, as the shockwave it causes with its ground-pounding causes significant damage. Instead, circle around to its side, attack with Oni Magic, and attempt to link a Critical attack to it.

Ouija

Ouijas are shadowy creatures that float on a cloud of flames in one of three different colors, indicative of the attribute they utilize in their magic. These enemies are essentially support characters to the Genma and cast magic at their enemies in an attempt to interfere with their ability to defend and attack. Some of their attacks deliver damage, while others simply try to paralyze or knock enemies down. Although they float above the ground, Ouijas can be attacked with Lift attacks and other jump attacks such as Jubei's Rising Dragon. Always defeat a Oujia as soon as possible, before it gives the other nearby enemies an opportunity to get the upper hand.



Genma General

These massive cape-wearing Genma carry a sword as large as Soki's and stand much taller. In addition to being the most durable of the Genma clan, they also have the greatest attack power. What makes them so terribly frightful, however, is their mastery of the arcane. Each Genma General is capable of attacking with fierce elemental attacks. Worst of all is the Dark Genma General that can leap into the air and pound the ground with such vigor that the resulting magical explosion means almost certain death to anyone nearby. Do not hesitate to trigger an Oni Awakening when encountering a Genma General, as they are nothing to be taken lightly.

Banquo

The Banquo is an egg-shaped gun-toting enemy that remains in place while charging and firing its guns. Some Banquo fire fully-automatic machineguns while others charge up a powerful blast cannon. Either way, they are to be destroyed immediately. Although they possess a moderate level of durability, they are easy to hit with a Critical Attack immediately following an Oni Magic attack. Regular Banquos—the machine gun variety—can often be killed with a single Critical Attack, while the Banquo G require additional attacks to eliminate.

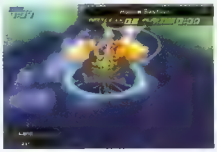
GUMMI NAVIGATION



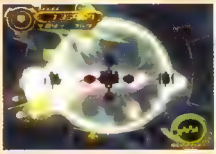
The only time that you can view the different worlds is when you're onboard the Gummi Ship. Many worlds have missions that you must win before the heroes can reach their next destination.

Press the button to make the Gummi Ship lock onto its nearest target, then press the button when locked onto a target to warp to its location. When nothing is targeted, press the button for a burst of speed. Press the button when near a world or mission to access it. When entering a world that Sora has already visited, a menu is displayed that allows for teleportation to previously visited Save Spots.

This section contains basic strategies to help you master the various Gummi Ship missions in the game. In addition, there is a comprehensive listing of Completion Bonuses and Treasures for each mission.

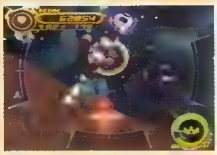
Asteroid Sweep

Asteroid Sweep is the first true Gummi Mission. Use the Left Analog Stick to move around and the button to fire. Press the button at any time to around quickly with a Barrel Roll. The primary objective when first entering a mission is to get through it alive. After that, you can return again at any time.



This is a great level to use Full Auto rapid fire, as asteroids are littered across space. It only takes a few hits to destroy each one. Lasers work great here, as they automatically lock on to targets. Watch out for the ships that resemble bells and annihilate them before they get too close. If they do get too close, use the Barrel Roll ability to zip away before they blow up. The Shield enemies are somewhat easy to defeat, but you must attack them from behind.

Clear out enemies as quickly as possible and watch for more foes to spawn. Several Red and Gold enemies do not spawn unless the enemies that appear before them are defeated first. An example is the gold Knight Head that drops the Neon Bar/G in Mission Level 1. You must first defeat all of the other enemies and give it time to appear before entering into the canyon.



If you have trouble obtaining a particular item, return later with a stronger ship. Pay attention to the special ships. In Mission Level 2, it is difficult to notice the red Gatling Ship that you fly over when fighting the gold Spider enemy that drops the Kingdom Model.

In Mission Level 3, you must rotate the camera quite a bit. Pay close attention to the ships that appear on the radar, especially those that appear yellow in color. If your ship gets surrounded, unleash Full Auto and rotate constantly. This increases your chances of eliminating the key enemies that trigger the appearance of the red and gold ships.

Treasure Items

You receive treasure items by defeating special enemies. There are a few tricks to keep in mind when collecting these items. Pay attention to the order and location of the items found. Use the list to approximate the timing and position of these enemies. The Screen column is especially useful in noting the camera orientation. Because many enemies move around, the Screen column shows only one direction that the enemy may attack from.

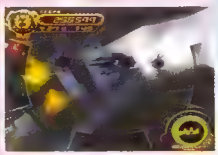
Stardust Sweep

The Stardust Sweep missions take place in an area similar to Asteroid Sweep. The newest and most troublesome enemies, called Hex Rings, fire laser rings. One way to avoid this attack is to remain still and allow the ring to pass around your ship. If other ships are also firing, perform a Barrel Roll to avoid any damage.

The final three items in Mission Level 1 can be difficult to obtain without a powerful ship. The trick is to defeat the last Spider enemy with time to spare. The large Hunter Ship makes its first appearance in Mission Levels 2 and 3. When battling it, remain in the center as often as possible to avoid its attacks. In Mission Level 2, it's necessary to defeat the Hunter rather quickly to make the Vernier/G and Fire/G ships appear. Don't miss the red enemy that spawns from behind during this fight and in Mission Level 3.

Mission Level 3 starts with a Spider enemy attacking from behind. Defeat it quickly to make other special enemies appear. Make a complete rotation with the camera while fighting this foe to take out the enemies that spawn around your ship. Taking this approach is essential to making the other red and gold ships appear before the planet's first architecture.



Upon reaching the second set of buildings, rotate to the left and eliminate the red Cyclops. After doing so, rotate 180-degrees so that your ship is facing the opposite direction. Quickly destroy another red Cyclops and rotate 180-degrees again. Now facing left, fire at the red and gold Cyclops enemies. You must dispose of these enemies to make the others appear.

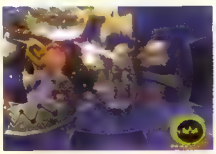
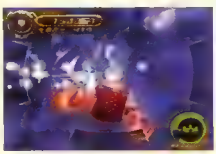
Phantom Storm



During the Phantom Storm missions, the main foe is an ominous pirate ship. During the pursuit, you cannot directly damage the pirate ship, so focus on the smaller enemies and watch the radar for other special ships.

During all three missions, it is possible to obtain one item by blowing up the pirate ship. Attack the Skull in the front to damage it, then wait patiently for the ship to circle before going all-out against it. Additionally, focus your attacks on the smaller ships and the cannons on the pirate ship's deck. Focus the majority of your attacks on the cannons.



Make quick work of the Drill Fighters in Mission Level 2. The first one is of the normal variety, the second one is red, and the third one is gold. You must defeat each one to make the next one appear. To make the medal collection in Mission Level 1 much easier, try to destroy the pirate ship. Demolish the giant wheels attached to the side to collect medals. In Mission Level 2, make the smaller ships the priority.
